Message from Martina Dvorak, Presenter for Session 2

The Learner's Lament: "We are tested on what we weren't taught & we are taught things that we aren't tested on."

While we have all learned about assessments, objectives, backwards design, etc. in our degree programs and through professional development, are we really using this information to better ourselves as teachers? Do your textbook and ancillary materials meet the needs of your instruction? How can you best support your students?

I will briefly describe how the full instructional design process works, and then simplify it for our everyday needs. I suggest that everyone bring a lesson or a "pet" project that you can make better, or at least have one in mind that you think could use some work. What lesson just never seems to work, or what lesson do you just ask yourself, "What's the point?" We will have some time to evaluate the lesson you bring and to write some new ideas.

Message from Pamela Froelich, Presenter for Sessions 3 & 4

Thank you so much for awarding me the first Herb Boswau Memorial Scholarship so I could attend ACTFL 2016 in Boston, MA. It was an invaluable time. I attended so many sessions that my brain was so full and I had so many great ideas to try in the classroom. It was so perfect to attend in the fall. That way I could have time to try out several of the ideas. I will be presenting and sharing these ideas at our Winter Conference in Bismarck on Saturday, January 28th during the Pay it Forward sessions. Make sure to attend so you can receive the links to the ACTFL presentations and practice first hand.
